WASHINGTON, DC 20510

September 25, 2017

The Honorable Donald J. Trump
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC

Dear President Trump,

We write to urge you to set a robust refugee admissions goal for Fiscal Year 2018.

As you know, we are in the midst of the largest refugee crisis in global history. Around the world, 22.5 million people are refugees, more than half of whom are children. An unprecedented 65.6 million people have been forcibly displaced from their homes because of violence, persecution, and war. Welcoming properly vetted refugees is both a moral imperative and enhances America's leadership and credibility abroad. Accordingly, we are requesting that you make a strong presidential determination for continued successful refugee admissions in Fiscal Year 2018.

The U.S. Refugee Admissions Program (USRAP) is a critical pillar of our national security and our foreign policy. The USRAP, the world's most thorough resettlement vetting program, has safely and successfully resettled more than three million refugees from around the world to American communities across the country since 1975. Applicants must undergo a rigorous screening process, with refugees spending roughly two years in exhaustive vetting by our nation's top security and counter-terrorism experts. The importance of the USRAP to our national security has been emphasized by American veterans and former senior government officials from diverse ideological backgrounds with wide experience in international policy and homeland security.

Since the enactment of the 1980 Refugee Act, the average annual goal for refugee admissions has been 95,000. In Fiscal Year 2016, the U.S. resettled approximately 85,000 refugees, and the Presidential Determination for Fiscal Year 2017 was 110,000. However, since Executive Order 13769 was signed, the number of refugees coming to the United States each month has dropped precipitously. Even in 2016, Australia, Norway, and Canada all accepted more refugees per capita than the United States. Failing to do our part to protect the victims of this global crisis undermines U.S. leadership, diplomacy, and national security.

The 50,000 number recommended in the President's budget request is insufficient when compared to the millions of people who have been forced to flee their countries. A Presidential Determination of just 50,000 would be the lowest refugee admissions goal since enactment of the 1980 Refugee Act, preventing thousands of people from enriching American communities while seeking safety, protection, and an opportunity to provide a better future for themselves and their families in the U.S.

The current global humanitarian crisis requires strong American leadership. To reflect that, we request that your Presidential Determination for the upcoming fiscal year set a robust refugee admissions goal.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. We look forward to working together with you and your Administration on this critical issue.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Shaheen
